A LIBRARIAN'S RESIGNATION.

Mr. Hooper, on Account of Failing, Health, Decides to Retire from the Library.

A called meeting of the members of the School Board constituting the committee on public library was held last night to consider William De M. Hooper's resignation of the office of librarian, which he has held for nearly five years. Mr. Hooper resigned on account of failing health and physical inability to perform the duties connected with the office, which are naturally somewhat arduous, and have become more so on account of the invoicing of the books. He has devoted himself to his work. and his resignation was a surprise to who were made aware fact yesterday. Who succeed him is as yet not decided. "The place will be temporarily filled," said a member of the board last night, "by some one of the attendants in the library at the present time. It is too soon to conjecture as to whom we shall select permanently, and in this matter we shall not act hastily; we intend to take plenty of time and make a choice which will not be regretted afterward. Our affairs are very indefinite now.

and when they will be clearer is more than any of us can tell." On account of the invoicing no books will be issued for circulation for several days. The delivery-room will be kept open, however, in order that all books due may be returned, and due notice will be given when the books will be ready for circulation. This will not affect the reading-room, which will remain open to the public at the usual hours.

Receiver Bradley's Report on the Condition of the United Order of Honor.

Had a Certain Surplus Been Left Undisturbed, the Creditors Could Now Get a Larger Per Cent. on Their Claims.

Giles S. Bradley, receiver of the Supreme Lodge of the United Order of Honor, yesterday filed with Judge Taylor a report of the condition of his trust, of which he took charge July 21. The assets, the report states, consisted of a quantity of books, papers and a little cash. Their total worth he estimated at $58,34. Of that amount he expended $7.08. Finding this condition of affairs, he made an examination of the books, memoranda and other papers of the lodge from Oct. 1, 1885, to the date of his appointment as receiver. He discovered that on the 1st of October, 1885, the lodge had two funds, the general and the mutual aid funds. The former, he thought, came from the sale of subordinate lodge charters, supplies, and the assessment of a per capita tax of $1 upon every member of the subordinate lodges. The mutal aid fund was derived from monthly assessments upon members to pay death and total disablity benefits. According to the bylaws of the order the disbursements of thesa funds was in the hands of the supreme treasurer, who was required to keep separate accounts of the funds. That of the nutual aid was designed to meet death and disability claims only, and the general fund was to be used only for the purpose for which it was created. The receipts of the general fund from Oct., 1885, to July 21, 1888, including a balance of $597.52, amounted to $19,-451.86. The books and stubs, however, indicated that the treasurer during the same interval paid out on general-fund warrants $28,238.04, which is $8,776.18 in excess of receipts for that purpose. The receipts of the mutual aid fund for that period, with a balance of $3,291.70, were $238,721.52. The amount paid on death and disability warrants between the dates given was $213,919.53, leaving a surplus, if not devoted to other uses than those intended, of at least $24,801.49. On July 18, 1888, Frank D. Macheth, the supreme president, addressed a circular to all the subordinate lodges, calling a circular to all the subordinate lodges, calling attention to unpaid claims amounting to $49,-519.80. The surplus given above would have paid over 60 per cent. of these claims had it remained undisturbed. The receiver states that the membership and assessments called were gradually and materially withdrawn during the last two years. He accounts for this on the ground of the failure to pay losses promptly, and believes that had they been met the fund would have increased so that every dollar of the liabilities might have so that every dollar of the liabilities might have been paid.

The receiver thinks the financial embarrassment began when the officers used the mutual aid fund for purposes other than the payment of death and total disability claims. In substan-tiation of this view he files a schedule marked C, footing up $2,434.55, containing items for salary, postage, printing, and other things. Another schedule, amounting to $2,970.68, is made up of items for salary, legal services, traveling expenses, and matters of that kind. There is then given a summary of the financial condition of the order from October, 1885, to July 21, 1888, Receipts, general fund...... $19,461.86

Receipts, mutual and fund
Total	$259,728.47

order	2,140.81

Medemption of bonds, shown by treas-urer's cash book, no warrants found... Sick benefit fund, no warrants found except $22.50..... Total$259,728.47

In commenting on this statement the receiver says it seems that at least $11,105.75 was drawn from the mutual aid fund and used for other purposes other than paying death and total dis-ability losses. He thinks the amended articles of the constitution perhaps gave some authority for the division of the fund, but still it was the application of the money in this manner that added to the complication of the financial condition of the order.

With reference to the unpaid claims against the lodge mentioned in Supreme President Macbeth's circular, the receiver says it will be found that thirty-one of the forty-seven bear date prior to October, 1836, and eleven subsequent to that time, while there is no record showing the date of the remainder. Taking it for granted that the thirty-one policy-holders have legitimate claims, and that there was a wrongful perversion of the mutual aid fund, the re-ceiver leaves it to the court to say who is

The report closes with references to the bonds of the trustees and officers, and states that he has been unable to get possession of those of supreme president, secretary and treasurer. He also refers to the absence of certain entries on the books which would identify certain cash which he had been told was received.

An Alleged Anarchist.

United States Commissioner Van Buren, after examining four witnesses yesterday afternoon, bound over to the grand jury Daniel W. Tingley, charged with blowing up the Cutler postoffice last Thursday at midnight with dynamite. On the night of the explosion one witness testified that Tingley had been heard to say that he intended blowing up the town. E. Bishop, of Frank-fort, in his evidence said that the prisoner was the same man who had on last Thursday purchased six pounds of dynamite and that he had recognized him on another occasion in the hotel at Cutler, when the arrest was made. . While the examination was in progress. and afterward, Tingley continually asserted his innocence. He is twenty-six years of age, sandy complexion, and a painter by trade. Of late he had been tending bar in the only saloon in Cutler, and became offended at the postmaster, William Sellers, because, as he said, Sellers signed a remonstrance petitioning the commissioners not to grant the proprietor of the saloon another license. When the explosion occurred Tingley was at once suspected, but was not at once arrested until Mr. Bishop, of whom the dynamite had been purchased, recognized him. He was then taken into custody and kept in jail at Delphi, until yesterday, when he was brought here by Deputy United States Marshal Ward. Deputy Postmaster McKinney says the prisoner is an Anarchist. Tingley says that he will be able to give the required bond of $200 to-day.

Gruelle Retains an Attorney. The petition of Thomas Egan and others to have Thomas Gruelle and John Bodenmiller enjoined from publishing the Labor Signal, and for the appointment of a receiver for the paper, will be heard by Judge Howe next Monday. Gruelle will resist the proposed legal action, and the supposition is that he will be backed by the Democratic State central committee, for which he has been working recently. He yesterday retained Henry Spaan to defend him. The act caused considerable comment, from the fact that before Gruelle went into the employ of the Democrats he was constantly denouncing Span through his paper as one of the indicted in the tally-sheet cases. Suing the Liquor-Sellers.

He was arrested for shooting with intent to kill, but owing to his youth he was fined but $50 and not imprisoned. Yesterday Mr. Benson brought suit against John Schaub and Conrad Wulff, the West Indianapolis saloon-keepers who, he alleges, sold the liquor to young Newmeyer, in violation of the law. He demands $6,000 damages from each.

Mr. Shaw Acquitted.

MANUAL TRAINING IN THE SCHOOLS.

The Department Begins the Term with Gratifying Attendance and Interest.

The city High-school has this year added a new feature to its curriculum that bids fair to meet with general popularity and benefit. It is the introduction of a course of industrial training, being confined to wood-working and practical drawing. This has been an ideal within the hopes of the school authorities for some time, and its realization this year is expected to be a permanent institution. Five years ago a summer course of industrial instruction was operated in the old High-school building, under the direction of Professor Goss, then connected with Purdue University. At that time four classes of twelve pupils each were formed, and the work met the approval of all who saw it. This was only an experiment, however, and it was some time before the matter was brought to a final decision. From the first Prof. W. W. Grant has been desirous of introducing the work in the regular high-school courses of instruction, and this year the attempt will be made. At High-school No. 1 rooms were fitted up during the past summer with appro-priate appliances for wood working. Eight benches bave been placed in a double row, each being large enough to accommodate two pupils at the same time. With each bench there is included a complete set of carpenter's tools, which are supposed to be kept in good working order by the students themselves. Through the generosity of Stoughton J. Fletcher and George Merritt, twelve sets of tools have been offered gratuitously, and in addition to these, four sets have been purchased by the school board, making the requisite number of sixteen. It was the original plan to admit pupils of all the four years to the classes in manual training, but it was found that the demands for admission would exceed the capacities of the department, and the instruction has been limited to first-year pupils only, of both the North and the South Side. However, a few of the higher years have been admitted to make the classes even in numbers. The work is wholly elective, but it is accepted as one year's study toward graduation. At present the classes number ninety-six pu-pils. These are divided into six sections of six the work, and is given the same credit as if they had been spent in the Greek or Latin rooms. All of the shop work and a portion of the drawing is superintended by Prof. W. H. Bass, while the remainder of the drawing has been placed under the direction of Miss Selliek, of Highschool No. 1. The work is finding considerable favor among the young ladies as well as the boys, a large number having joined the classes, and every day some are in the shops with planes and band-saws. Their work com pares very favorably with any done in the shop, the instructor says, and in many instances they exhibit a natural skill and tact in working far above that of their sterner bench companions. The course of study in the work-shop is divided into six general groups. The student is first explained the use of all the tools placed at his control. This includes practical instruction in squaring, beveling, guaging, application of the chalk-line, rules, planes and saws. The first real work done is in jointing with plain joints. A common box is the only required result of this series of lessons, but simple as it may seem, it is ofttimes the most difficult part of the entire course to acquire successfully. After the entire course to acquire successfully. After the student has become skilful in jointing he is instructed in splicing, of which there are some half dozen varieties. During this instruction he is required to recite upon the adaptability of each variety to certain conditions. Mortising is next taken up, including the making of panels, after which dove-tailing is explained. In all of these cases great care is taken with each individual pupil, and no one department is abandoned and another taken up until the pupil has become thoroughly conversant with the work. The final work of the course will be the construction of some piece of furniture. By the middle of the year Professor Bass expects to have lathes in his shops, and instruction in wood turning and carving will be given as an advanced course of study. Amusements. In the person of James C. Roach, who will be seen at the English Opera-house to-night in his own Irish-American, entitled Dan Darcy, J. M. Preparing for Electric Light. The Brush Electric-light Company hopes to be able to light the central part of the city with electricity in a month or six weeks. The securing of the contract necessitated the putting in of an almost entirely new plant here, and there has been some delay in having the new machinery made. In addition to the dynamos now in use, two new ones of the greatest capacity are being put in position. The work of setting the poles and stringing the wires will be pushed rapidly. The Council committee on public light, under whose direction the lights will be located, has not yet determined in what territory the one hundred lights will be dis-

Requisition Issued. A warrant was issued by Governor Gray yesterday for the arrest of John D. Kinney on a requisition from Governor Foraker, of Ohio. The papers charge Kinney with embezzling money to the amount of $78 while acting as agent for William J. Archer, of Staubenville, that State. The man wanted is now in jail at Fort Wayne. in which city he was arrested by detective Burns, into whose hands the requisition papers were tributed. It is probable that all that portion of the city lying within North, East, South and West streets will be lighted. The light, under the contract, will burn all night the year round.

RELIGIOUS MATTERS.

The Camp Meeting of the Seventh-Day Adventists at Bruce's Grove. The attendance at the camp-ground of the Seventh-Day Adventists is steadily increasing. there being a number of arrivals yesterday from all parts of the State. The first service was very highly commended by the papers else-where. His engagement is for three nights and held Tuesday evening, when Elder Corless preached to a good congregation. He said that the coming of the Lord would not be as a thief in the night to the ungodly alone, but that a large share of the professed people of God would be taken as in a snare. Yesterday morning the stand was occupied by Dr. J. H. Kellogg, of Michigan, who spoke upon the subject of temperance. Seventh-day Adventists, he said, considered temperance in dress and eating as of as much importance as temperance in drinking. He thought all temperance workers should raise their voices against the use of topacco, tea, coffee and pork, which, he declared, every intelligent man knew to be injurious to health. In the afternoon a sermon was delivered by Elder Butler. The attendance, both morning and afternoon, was good, and the attention very marked. The camp is located pear the northern terminus of the Massachusetts and College-avenue street-car line. There are at present about seventy tents on the ground, capable of accommodating eight persons each. Care has been taken to keep the camp clean, and it is a very desirable place for religious services, being at all times quiet. It is expected that by Friday evening there will be at least five hundred on the ground. In connection with the camp meeting the annual conference of the Seventh-day Adventists is being held, all the ministers in the State being present, together with George I. Butler, president of the General Conference, J. O. Corless, G. G. Rupert, C. Eldridge and Dr. J. H. Kellogg, chief physician of the Battle Creek Sanitarium, Battle Creek,

A New Pastor Expected. The Indiana Conference meets next week at Mt. Vernon, and at that time the question of a pastor at Meridian-street Church will be determined. A member of the official board stated yesterday that the matter had been left entirely with Bishop Vincent, who is to preside at the approaching conference. "We recommended to the Bishop," said this member, "three ministers from whom we would like for him to make a choice, and I doubt not that he will do so. They are Rev. Dr. Parkhurst, of Greencastle; Rev. Dr. Cleveland, of Philadelphia, and Rev. Dr. Givler of Bloomington. Our first choice among these would probably have been Dr. Parhurst, but he declined to leave his present place-or

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE.

For quick raising, the Royal Baking Powder is superior to all other leavening agents. It is absolutely pure and wholesome and of the highest leavening power. It is always uniform in strength and quality and never fails to make light, sweet, most palatable and nutritive food. Bread, biscuits, muffins, cake, etc., raised with Royal Baking Powder may be eaten hot without distressing results to the most delicate digestive organs. It will keep in any climate without deterioration.

Prof. H. A. Mott, U. S. Government Chemist, after examining officially the principal baking powders of the country, reported:

"The Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure, for I have so found it in many tests made both for that company and the United States Government.

"Because of the facilities that company have for obtaining perfectly pure cream of tartar, and for other reasons dependent upon the proper proportions of the same, and the method of its preparation, the Royal Baking Powder is undoubtedly the purest and most reliable baking powder offered to the public.

rather his charge refused to consent to his leaving it, and he would not make the change without its consent. Inasmuch as Bishop Vincent was the one to recommend Dr. Cleveland, it would appear that the latter's chances were good for the appointment. He was recommended not only by the Bishop but by the Rev. Lee Mun-hall, formerly of this city, who says that he is an eloquent man and a fine pastor.
